

Food and religious pluralisms

Comparing China and the Mediterranean world

Friday 21 - Saturday 22
September 2018
9:30 - 17:30

An international conference at the Confucius Institute

266 rte de Lausanne - 1292 Chambésy

under the scientific direction of Prof. Vincent Goossaert (EPHE, PSL)

Entrée libre, places limitées

Inscription et renseignements : ic@unige.ch / 022 379 07 30

unige.ch/ic

INSTITUT CONFUCIUS

FACULTÉ DES LETTRES

UNITÉ D'HISTOIRE DES RELIGIONS

UNIVERSITÉ DE GENÈVE

Friday Sept. 21

Panel 1: Eating together

De la Pâque juive aux Pâques chrétiennes

Claudine Vassas (CNRS)

Eating vegetables and serving the demon: identity politics of late imperial China

Cao Xinyu (Renmin U.)

Chair-discussant: Dominique Jaillard (Geneva U.)

Panel 2: Talking of food

The language of food in Chinese Buddhism

James Robson (Harvard U.)

The Symbolism of raw and cooked in Turko-Persian Sufism

Thierry Zarcone (CNRS, GSRL)

Dog-meat and garlic: narratives about carnal and non-carnal hun 獄 (forbidden) food in late imperial Chinese literature

Vincent Durand-Dastès (Inalco)

Chair-discussant: Vincent Goossaert (EPHE, PSL)

Saturday Sept. 22

Panel 3: Meat taboos

Food avoidance and the construction of Jewish identity in antiquity: between discourse and practice

Anna Angelini (Lausanne U.)

Revisiting the Chinese beef taboo

Vincent Goossaert (EPHE, PSL)

Between Particularism and Universalism: The Avoidance of Pork from Antiquity to Hypermodernity

Misgav Har-Peled (Centre Edgar Morin, Paris, EHESS/CNRS)

Chair-discussant: Pascale Bugnon (Geneva U.)

Panel 4: Spiritual and material foods

Some general observations about food taboos (from an ancient Egyptian point of view)

Youri Volokhine (Geneva U.)

The Chinese notion of vitality coming from blood food (xueshi shengqi 血食生气)

Zhang Xuesong (Renmin U.)

The materiality of food in Chinese religious discourse

Thomas Jansen (Lampeter)

Chair-discussant: James Robson (Harvard U.)

General discussion