International NGOs are key to solving the world's challenging problems and are increasingly relevant in today's diverging world. But how do these organizations embrace the opportunities provided through technology and how are they retaining engagement? What parallels can we draw and how can we come together to drive further cross-sectoral partnerships around innovation?

An interactive panel of cross-sector innovation champions who will share their insights and experiences on innovation best practices, how to overcome organizational bottlenecks, and what is needed for more cross-sector partnership around innovation with INGOs.
