

IgBIG Program Fall Term 2013

- 01.10.13 Pierre-Luc Germain on “Models as instruments”
- 08.10.13 Raphael Scholl and Kärin Nickelsen on “Discovery from a causal point of view: oxidative phosphorylation and the Calvin-Benson cycle”
- 15.10.13 Kostas Kampourakis on “Understanding evolution: what the philosophy and history of science can contribute”
- 22.10.13 Christine Clavien and Michel Chapuisat on “The evolution of self- and other-oriented utility functions”
- 29.10.13 Guillaume Schlaepfer on “Sober on a priori causal claims about evolution”
- 12.11.13 Andrea Loettgers and Tarja Knuuttila on “Indirect representation and the Lotka-Volterra model”
- 03.12.13 Marie Kaiser and Marcel Weber on “The limits of causal modeling”
- 17.12.13 Juliane Wilcke on “Moving beyond the common bias that consciousness is an evolutionary adaptation”