Event Crisis of Democracy: In Need for Democratic Innovations?

06SE615-004a / Seminar / 4,622

Description:

Business event contents:

The crisis of democracy is marked by declining trust in institutions and political participation. Democratic innovations, involving participation and deliberation, are key to addressing this crisis. They boost citizen involvement and strengthen democratic institutions. This seminar explores how these innovations reshape representative democratic governance on various levels.

Notes:

The course will follow a mixed model of teaching, class work (reading discussion) and individual presentations. Classwork and lectures will be held onsite.

Course Materials: The course material will be available through the online learning platform OLAT to registered students.
