

SWITZERLAND

info sheet

territorial scope: 78 % (18) national and 22% (5) sub-national;
100% of sub-national surveys conducted in cities

all surveys were conducted for the purpose of academic research, 26% (6)
also to inform public policy and 30% (7) also for government statistics

all surveys are representative of the population

types: 44% (10) single cross-section, 26% (6) repeated cross-section, 30% (7) longitudinal/panel

target population: 91 % (21) adults (18+ and 15+), 8% (2) elder population only (55+)

top-5 categories of target population: German, foreigners, Turkish, migrants, Italians

74% (17) designed as migrant and minority surveys,
26% (6) designed as general population survey
44% (10) include a subgroup of the majority population, 56% (13) do not include one

Top-5 topics covered: "citizenship and naturalization",
"labor market integration", "demographic characteristics/behaviors", "educational attainment/trajectory, human capital, skills", "family relations"

sampling method: 74% (17) random sampling/selection; 26% (6) mixed sampling procedures

overall response rate:

national: min. 22.6% max. 62%
sub-national: min. 22.2% max. 47.5%

2 most-used collection modes: 65% (15)
web/email and 61% (14) telephone 65% (15) questionnaire in migrant language

52% (12) available for download/direct access,
30% (7) with restrictions, 18% (4) not accessible

23 surveys
were identified:

- through a systematic search in the existing social science data archives: FORS, BFS
- by contacting the main research on ethnic/migrant minorities – NCCR on the move, Swiss Forum for Migration and Population Studies, Swiss Network of Young Migration Scholars
- through targeted Google searches
- by directly contacting researchers who published work using self-collected data

Though the time-coverage frame allowed going back to 2000, the earlier surveys we retrieved were collected 2006-2007.

The latest survey we recorded was collected

All national and sub-national level surveys addressed to EMM (ethnic and migrant minority) respondents were included irrespective of the sample size.

National-level population surveys were included if they covered a well-suited topic for the study of integration.

The website of the EMM Survey Registry:

<https://ethmigsurveydatahub.eu/emmregistry/>

Set the (left hand-side) Simple filtering - 1.0. Country to Switzerland for a listing of and details on all surveys.